THAI BANGKAEW DOG

Hallmark of the Thai Bangkaew Dog

White ruff hair covering the withers seems like a shawl

Tail moderately long, well feathered, well set on and carried with moderate upward curve over back

Symmetrical markings on head, covering eyes and ears, preferred with white a marking around the muzzle

Backside of hindlegs covered with long hair to the hocks

Back of forelegs covered with feathering diminishing to pasterns

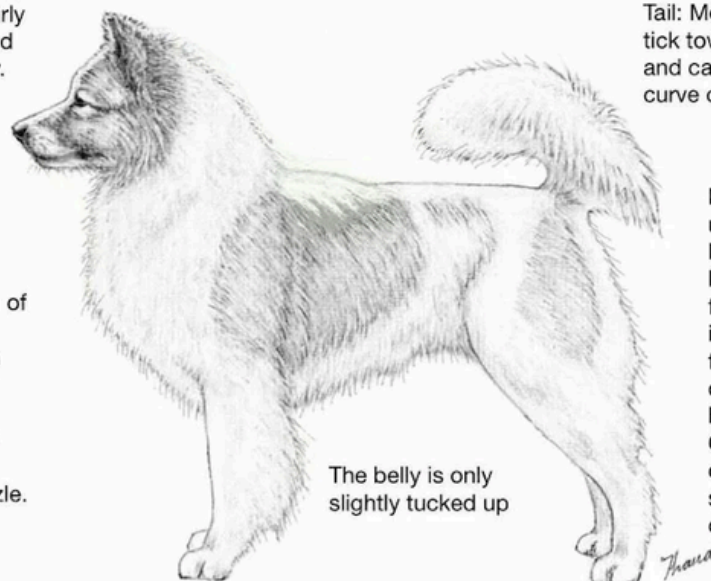

Ears: Small, in proportion to head, set on rather high but not too close together, triangular with tips slightly pointed, erect and pointing toward, only slightly hooded.

The skull is wedge-shaped and should be strong, fairly broad but not coarse, and in proportion to the body.

Tail: Moderately long, well feathered, tick towards the base, well set on and carried with moderate upward curve over back

Any shape or distribution of patches accepted, but symmetrical markings on head, covering eyes and ears preferred, with or without a dark mask and preferably with a white marking around the muzzle.

The belly is only slightly tucked up

Hair: Guard coat straight and coarse, undercoat soft and dense, Double coat: Moderately long on body, longer around neck and shoulders forming a ruff that is more pronounced in males than in females. Back of forelegs covered with feathering diminishing to pasterns. Backside of hindlegs cover long hair to the hocks. Coat length never to be so exaggerated as to obscure the body shape. The coat is short on head and on front of legs.

Males: Min. 46 cm. Max. 55 cm.
Females: Min. 41 cm. Max. 50 cm.

Length of body / Height at withers is 1: 1
Length of legs slightly superior to depth of chest.

Skull: The skull is wedge-shape and should be strong fairly broad but not course, and in proportion to the body.
Stop: Clearly defined, but moderate.

FACIAL REGION:

Nose: Black and in proportion to muzzle.
Muzzle: Of medium length, broad at base and appearing toward tip.
Nasal bridge should be straight.
Lips: Tight with dark and full pigmentation.
Jaws/Teeth: Upper and lower jaws are strong and with full dentition.
Scissors bite: A pincer bite is tolerated.

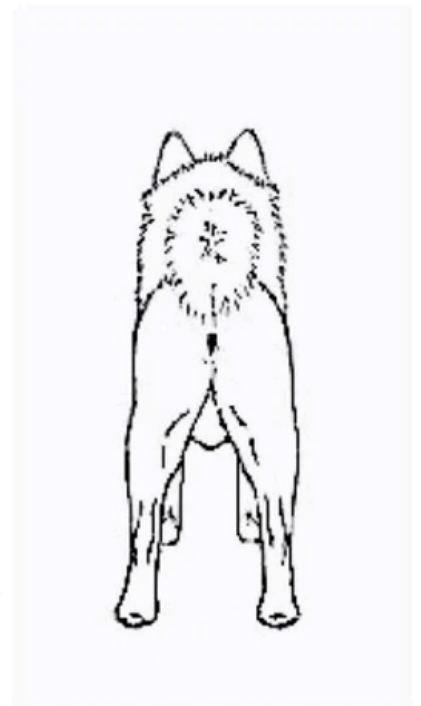

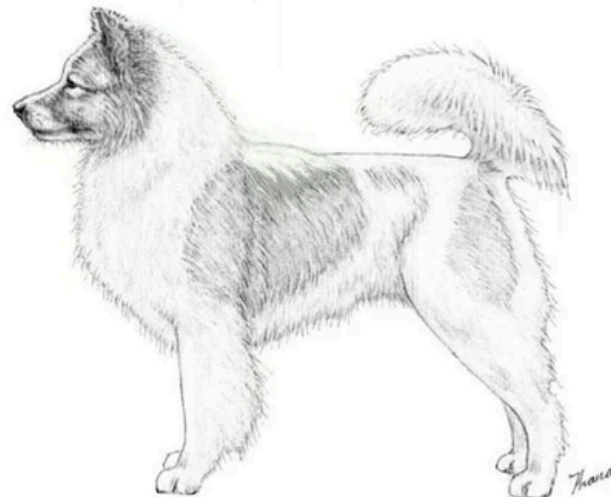

EYES: Medium sized, almond shaped, colour should black or dark brown.
EARS: Small, in proportion to head, set on rather high but not too close together, triangular with tips slightly pointed erect and pointing forward,

Any shape or distribution of patches accepted, but symmetrical markings on head, covering eyes and ears preferred with or without a dark mask and preferably with marking around the muzzle. Slight ticking in the white is permissible in an otherwise excellent specimen.

FOREQUARTERS:

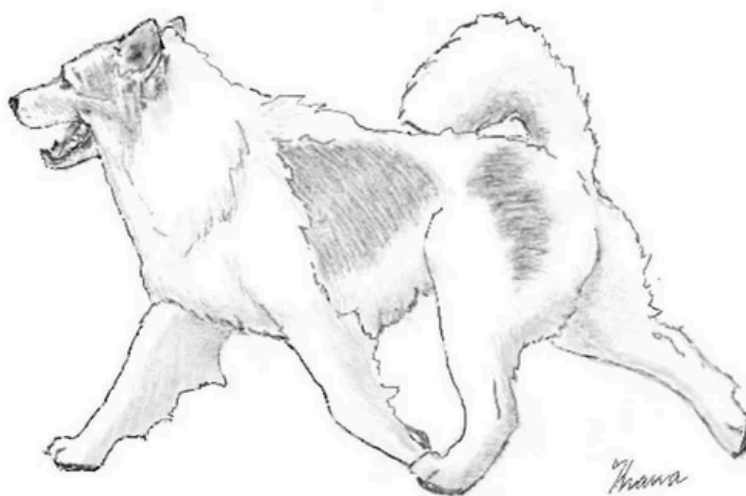

Shoulder: Moderately laid back and well muscled.
Upperarm: In balance with shoulder angulation.
Forearm: Straight and strong, parallel when viewed from the front.
Metacarpus (Pastern): Short with only a slight slope.
Forefeet: Rounded, arched and tightly knit.

HINDQUARTERS:

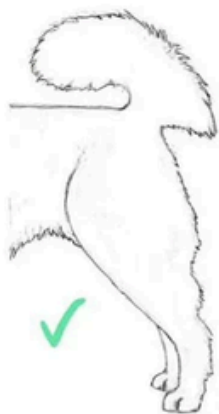

Thigh: Angulation in balance with that of forequarters and strongly muscled.
Stifle (Knee): well angulated.
Hock joint: Well let down.
Metatarsus (Rear pastern): Viewed from behind, perpendicular to the ground.
Hind feet: As forefeet.

GAIT / MOVEMENT

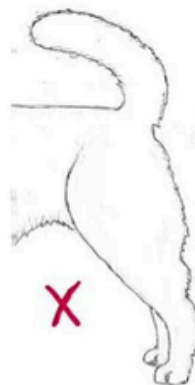

Flexible and strong movement with good reach and drive, but never with exaggerated reach, drive and speed, keeping level topline and proud carriage of head and tail. Front and hind legs parallel. Front and rear movement tend to single-track when speed is increased.
